A SONG OF THE EVERYDAYS.

Come, sing me a song in the tongue I know,
I am tired of the stilted strain,
The worn old rut where the fancies strut
In a meaningless, tangled chain.
I am weary of fights with the far-off gods,
That only the wise may praise.
I want the mirth and the tears of earth,
A song of the everydays.

A song to lighten the lives of those Whom labor has called its own,
A note to beat an echo sweet
Of the world that each has known,
A breeze from the mountain's eager peak,
A whiff from the woodland ways,
A deck of foam from the beach at home,
A song of the everydays.

A blossom plucked from the hawthorn hedge,
A leaf from the bough above,
A ribbon rare or a tress of hair,
A kiss from the lips of love,
A mother's step on a chamber floor,
The catch of a childish phrase,
A grassy green sod and a prayer to God,
A song of the everydays.

Oh, sing me a song of the fields and hills,
A song of the sea and land,
That shall ring again in the hearts of men
And the least shall understand.
No hint of the scholar's classic lore
Or the cynic's bitter lays,
But a song to rest in a peasant's breast—
A song of the everydays.

—Joe Lincoln in L. A. W. Bulletin.

A SIGNATURE.

It was about 15 days ago, at the country home of Brignac, on one of those exquisite afternoons when, although one shivers at the thought of the approaching autumn, the sun throws here and there mild though already paler rays.

While awaiting the hour for taking up the nets in the pretty bend of the Marne, a river which loiters indolently along the meadows, winding like a giant silver snake, we were talking on the wide veranda, which was filled with the heavy, intoxicating odor of heliotropes.

A charming man is Brignac. Formerly an officer in the light cavalry, he is a man of majestic chest, large face, a trifle too flushed, with an immense white beard and square features. Born at that period when the empire was at its height, he had taken pleasure as it came to him, and it must be said that the advent of the republic seemed to him an insufficient reason for renouncing the pleasures of this world. He amused himself under M. Thiers, under MacMahon and even under M. Grevy. It was only seven years ago that the gout thought best to interfere. Brignac was then—why disclose the age of a gallant man whose friendship is true and whose cook is without equal? He was advised to try the baths. It was there, near a spring, whence bubbled up a hot liquid which smelled like a bad egg, that he met a young English girl, straight and slender as a pretty bamboo stalk. He had still a gallant air and quite a fortune, she very little. The next winter the pretty English woman married the former cavalry officer. They have one child. They are happy.

Only, Brignac has aged a great deal and has become horribly serious. He is a good comrade for me. He gave me when I was very young that practical advice which is never forgotten, and I am happy from time to time to be with him—for an hour or two.

While talking, as we passed by a little room opening on the conservatory, I saw in the corner of the room, soberly seated before a table, my host's son, Gaston, a pretty, dark child. He had let his pen roll across the table, and with a glance that seemed to me full of melancholy he followed the resting flight of the swallows that were skimming close to the lawn, flying through the warm of the sun.

On such a beautiful day, in this room, with, in contrast to the sunny landscape, seemed more gloomy than a dungeon in the palace of the dogs, the sight of this child prisoner gave me pain, and I could not refrain from saying to my friend:

"How have you the heart to shut up this child at such a time?" And Brignac answered:

"My dear friend, when he knows how to write I will leave him alone, for he is not yet 5 years old and very intelligent; but he must learn to write, and write well, I mean."

"That is without doubt because your own handwriting is like cat scratches." "That might indeed be a reason. We should endeavor to help our children to avoid such of our faults as have troubled us in our own career—and besides—"

"My dear Brignac, I do not know whether it is because you live too much in the country, but it seems to me that you are becoming very much of a Prudhomme."

He interrupted me with some spirit: "Perhaps I am like Prudhomme. Prudhomme was an individual who paddled his own canoe very well; besides—Do you wish me to tell you why I am so anxious that my little scamp should write well?"

"It is a story of that time when you would not have called me Prudhomme. It was a long time ago, in 1863. At that time Baden-Baden was Baden-Baden, and Monte Carlo nothing but a little fishing village. Every one who was in the swim or considered himself so hurried to Baden-Baden as soon as July came around. At that time the club-rooms were empty—not more so than now, during the week of the races at Deauville. That year I had remained at Paris, where, in my little suit on a ground floor in the Rue Trinité, I had not been so frightfully dull, when one morning a letter was brought to me. The letter was a demand for money—not one of those vulgar, begging letters, heaping upon one recitals of ill luck, swearing eternal gratitude and everlasting devotion. No, it was short and to the point, without any beating about the bush.

"I have not a single son. Send me immediately 1,000 francs that I may pay my hotel bill and return to France to enlist."

"This letter, horribly scrawled, was

The Trans-Mississippi and International Congress is composed of delegates from every State and Territory West of the Mississippi river. The idea of this exposition originated in that Congress at its session at Omaha in 1895, and the project has become a National enterprise and the National Commission has been organized and is in active service, there being one commissioner for each of the several departments of the Government. Most of the Trans-Mississippi States are well along in the way of gathering exhibits from their respective States and many of them have made liberal appropriations, while others are preparing exhibits through private enterprise.

Vice-President H. B. Maxson of Reno, has made arrangements whereby he can get Nevada exhibits, shipped from any point in the State along the line of the C. P. R. R., to Omaha and return, and he requests all persons who wish the interests of the State advertised, to co-operate with the Exposition County Commissioner of his county, whose name is shown above, and prepare some product of his county and send it to the nearest point on the C. P. R. R. from which place it will be sent to Omaha and exhibited, and returned to R. B. from which place it will be sent to Omaha and exhibited, and returned to the same point at the close of the exposition, free of expense to the exhibitor. Full information should accompany everything sent for exhibition. Before sending anything to the line of the railroad a full description should be given to the Exposition Commissioner of the county, who in turn will notify the Vice-President, who will notify him what action to take, otherwise there might be many duplications. Apply to your County Representative for further information, and don't let this opportunity of advertising the resources of Nevada be lost.

Resolved, "That the people of the island of Cuba are and of right ought to be free and independent."

THE MERCHANTS OF RENO AND THEIR COMPLAINTS.

There is much complaint by the merchants and others in business against the town's people in Reno who supply their wants by buying supplies in San Francisco, Sacramento and in the cities east of the mountains, and, beyond any doubt, there is more cause for these complaints than is generally known to the merchants of Reno, but in this matter as in all other matters that exist and that come under the observation of men there is a cause for the effect under observation. Has it occurred to the merchants and others in Reno that there is an underlying cause as large as the effect which they so sensibly feel for the outflow of trade from our town? Have the merchants and others affected by the outflow of trade from our people investigated the matter for the purpose of getting at an intelligent conclusion as to the cause of the outflow of trade? If investigation has been made the cause should have been found and a remedy provided, but from the continued complaint it should be inferred that no investigation has been made. No cause has been ascertained and as a conclusion no remedy is provided. The town at this time is being canvassed for trade by agents from San Francisco, and it would probably astonish a Reno merchant were he informed of the success these agents have secured in the form of promises and obligations from the people to trade in San Francisco. These men engage to furnish anything from a needle to a crowbar, from a pair of hose to an overcoat, from a pair of stockings to a sealskin over garment, and from a dust of pepper to a barrel of flour; anything will be furnished that is required to supply the domestic needs of the people. It may not have entered the minds of any of our trades people that many of the Reno merchants have furnished the people who send away for supplies an example by sending to San Francisco and other points for domestic supplies for use not included in their line of trade, and if the people do as the merchants do should the merchants complain? Certain professional and business men in Reno will not patronize any home industry when by sending away they can do better. Should not the people be accorded the same privilege? And if they do as these merchants and some other people of Reno do, should any blame attach to them for so doing? The world was not made for a favored few, but was made for the human family. When the newspaper people of Reno complain that the papers do not receive the patronage they should receive, our business people are not slow to inform us they can do better by sending away for supplies. Job work costs money and by giving large orders we do better at other places, and the agents of other places receive our orders. The business people of our town may be right about doing better abroad in job work than they could do in Reno. What is said is not intended as an argument in favor of Reno job work, but is a statement of facts. The newspaper people are also reminded by the merchants and others that "we advertise in the paper and that is enough." The JOURNAL is clearly of the opinion that it is too much. The popular idea among business people is, that advertising increases the business of the advertiser and the advertiser is benefited by increased trade and sales, but increased trade and sales could not with propriety be given as a reason in favor of advertising in Reno papers, for the benefit of Reno merchants as the trade of the town as business is conducted is larger than they supply. Upon this view, which is believed to be a correct view, the merchant in Reno who does not advertise, shows more wisdom than the merchant who does advertise. The man who does not advertise is more in harmony with trade surroundings in Reno by taking what he gets by the force of circumstances. The only difference that should be noted in the men in Reno who advertise and those who do not advertise is—that those who do advertise have fine business ideas that should be cultivated by advertising more, while the men who do not advertise have no business ideas that should be cultivated. There is a social and business dry rot in Reno that is destroying the energies of the people and which is taking away the enjoyment of those higher and better conditions that make men better and life worth living. Our people are generous and have enterprise which needs direction for the good of the social and business community in which they live. You may as well take notice now that it is the intention of the JOURNAL to keep business and other matters before you till something is done by you to make matters better.

WASH. NEWS.

After an exciting chase the cruiser Minneapolis captured the French steamer La Fayette. She was warned not to attempt to run the blockade, but persisted in trying to do so. She was boarded and her papers examined and she was sent to Key West with a prize crew. Two or three other United States vessels participated in running her down.

The Pope has telegraphed the Queen Regent assuring her of his support in an appeal to the Powers for an honorable and amicable solution of the present crisis.

It is reported at Kingston, Jamaica, that four Spanish warships have been seen off Port de Cuba and they are believed to be a part of the Spanish flotilla.

Two Spanish Schooners were captured yesterday and taken to Key West as prizes.

A special purporting to come from Manila and received at London via Formosa says that after Admiral Dewey disposed of the Spanish fleet he bombarded Manila. The city took fire, but it is claimed that the fire was the work of the insurgents.

It is said the French Government will lodge protests against the capture of the La Fayette. But it is claimed that under the blockade proclamation she was plainly violating the law and endeavoring to get under the fortifications of Havana after being warned by United States officers.

WEATHER BULLETIN.

(Copyright, 1898, by W. T. Foster.)

ST. JOSEPH, Mo., May 7.—My last bulletin gave forecasts of the storm wave to cross the continent from May 10th to 14th and 15th to 19th.

The next disturbance will reach the Pacific coast about May 20th, cross the west of Rockies country by close of 21st, great central valleys 22d to 24th Eastern States 25th.

Warm wave will cross the west of Rockies country about 20th, great central valleys 22d, Eastern States 24th.

Cool wave will cross the west of Rockies country 23d, great central valleys 25th, Eastern States 27th.

Temperature of the week ending at 8 A. M. May 23d, will average below normal east of the Rockies and above west. This week will close with a general rise in temperature east of the Rockies and a fall west. Rainfall will be short east of the Rockies and normal west.

The period covered by the last above paragraph is exactly the same as covered by the weather bureau crop weather report which are issued weekly during the crop season. These crop reports make no forecasts but give a good and convenient record of the temperature and rainfall for the past week therefore constitute the proper standard by which to test that part of these forecasts.

Subscribers to the paper in which bulletins are published can always secure my monthly weather charts by sending stamp to my address.

MORE SPANISH TREACHERY.

Cutting the Cables to the Mines in New York Harbor.

Two more sub-marine mines, forming a part of the defense of New York Harbor, have been found out from their cables and set adrift. The first was found at Island Beach near Barnegat, New Jersey, the second came ashore at Seagirt, New Jersey. This makes the second batch of mines to come ashore on the Jersey Coast. Six mines in all have thus far been found with their cables cut. Those in charge of the defenses are quoted as saying the mines were cut by men in the employ of Spain.

Louisiana is the only State where all who wish to volunteer can do so. The 10,000 immunes for the garrison of Havana will have to be enlisted in Louisiana. The President is likely to call for them this week.

There is no lack of enterprise on the part of Henry Riter. Everything is up-to-date at the Elite and the most fastidious person can find no fault in the style or quality of his liquid refreshments.

A man married recently a young wife who takes everything quite literally. Many American weeds which are now neglected, according to a botanist, are good to eat. The tender shoots of milkweed are said to resemble in taste asparagus. Pigweed is related to beets and spinach. The nettle, too, is declared to be well flavored, although it is somewhat coarse and stringy.

License Question.
Sheriff McInnis called at the JOURNAL office yesterday and corrected the impression given out in an editorial a day or two since that a certain representative of a Sacramento millinery establishment had not paid a license. The Sheriff says that he collected $10 license, charging the party the peddler's license instead of regular merchant's quarterly license. In regard to city licenses, the Sheriff stated that he had nothing to do with them but as far as that was concerned the Supreme Court had specified the tradesman liable for city license and that the merchants are not included, the license applies to saloons, hotels, theatrical performances, etc.

The fact remains, however, that outside canvassers are constantly working the town on small orders in various lines and there should be some means of making them pay for the privilege.

Millions Given Away.
It is certainly gratifying to the public to know of one concern in the land who is not afraid to be generous to the needy and suffering. The proprietors of Dr. King's New Discovery for consumption, coughs and colds, have given away over ten million trial bottles of this great medicine; and have the satisfaction of knowing it has absolutely cured thousands of hopeless cases. Asthma, bronchitis, hoarseness and all diseases of the throat, chest and lungs are surely cured by it. Call on S. J. Hodgkinson Druggist, and get a trial bottle. Regular size 50 cent and $1. Every bottle guaranteed, or price refunded.

Patriotic.
Judge Cheney and Doctor Patterson circulated a subscription yesterday for the purpose of raising funds to erect a large flagstaff on the State University grounds and purchase a flag for the same. The gentlemen met with excellent success and the project will doubtless be carried out. It is estimated that the cost will amount to about $800. Appropriate exercises will be a feature at the raising of the flag on the new liberty pole.

BASKET BALL.

The University Team vs the Wives of the Faculty.
A game of basket ball will be played on Monday afternoon at 2 o'clock at the University gymnasium. The teams have been practicing together and are very evenly matched, but in the contest on Monday, both will strive for supremacy. It is proposed to admit lady spectators, but none of the sterner sex will be allowed to be present, for during the period of progress of the game, the interior of the gym will be considered sacred.

The game will be very interesting and being something comparatively new in the amusement line for the ladies, there should be a good attendance and the teams given every encouragement. The game will be preceded by class exercises in physical culture under the direction of the young lady coach and trainer and this part of the program will be especially interesting. A small admission will be charged and the sum realized will be used for the purchase of gymnasium apparatus especially for the use of the physical culture class.

JEFFRIES VS. SHARKEY.

The Fight Lasts Twenty Rounds and is Decided in Favor of the Former.
Fifteen thousand tickets were sold for the Jeffries-Sharkey contest which took place at the Mechanics' Pavilion, San Francisco, last night. The betting in the pools was $10 to $9 against Sharkey and in the mutuals Jeffries was favorite and the belief prevailed that he would knock Sharkey out in from 5 to 9 rounds.

The first feature on the program was a ten-round go between Jack Stelzner and Harry Baker.

Before this was called however several tiers of seats fell injuring a number of occupants and causing a terrible uproar. The injured persons were carried out and taken to the Breathing Hospital. Many left the hall and the police had great difficulty in restoring order. Finally the announcement was made that no one was seriously hurt and the preliminary bout was called. Jack Stelzner and Harry Baker entered the ring. The gong sounded but the first three rounds were tame and created little interest owing to the confusion caused by the collapse of the seats. Rounds four and five were vicious, but in the latter Stelzner lost his head and fouled Baker and the referee decided in favor of Baker. Stelzner then attacked the referee and was hustled out by the police.

At 9:55 Jeffries entered the ring, Sharkey following two minutes later. Time was called at 10:35. Both men stepped briskly forward. Sharkey flinched and broke ground rapidly while Jeffries was forcing and holding his guard high. Jeffries showed considerable advantage in height and reach. The first round resulted in no damage.

From the second round until the twentieth it was a bitterly contested battle, each striving for every advantage possible and each watching for an opportunity for a knock out. Rounds two, three, four and five passed, neither having any great advantage, but the prospects were slightly in favor of Jeffries.

The sixth round closed with the sailor somewhat rattled and the worse for wear, with Jeffries fresh and still the favorite. In the seventh Sharkey rushed like a mad bull and landed several good blows forcing Jeff half way through the ropes. Jeff showed some weariness at the close of the round. In the eighth Jeff fumed matters and made it hot for the sailor, but the round closed with long range sparring.

In the ninth round after some vicious jabs on the part of both, Jeff gave Sharkey two straight lefts on the mouth and tried other blows, but fell short. He again showed that he was tiring. In the tenth round Sharkey forced matters and honors were about even until Jeff landed one between Sharkey's eyes almost sending him to the floor. In the eleventh Sharkey got in a left and right swing on Jeff's neck, but the latter gave him one on the head that caused Sharkey to slip and stagger and fall to his knees, grasping Jeff by the leg as he fell. Jeff uppercut the sailor twice, badly rattling him in this round.

In the twelfth round Jeff uppercut Sharkey twice and met the sailor's jabs skillfully. He seemed to have taken his man's measure and was slowly breaking him down. In the thirteenth round Sharkey ducked Jeff's left hand swing twice, each time hitting Jeff in the stomach with his head with great force, but in the end grew wild and did little damage.

Round fourteen, honors were about even, both delivering some good blows. In round fifteen Jeff cornered the sailor and got in some terrific blows, one of which cut Sharkey's ear and Jeff was given first blood. The round ended with Sharkey very groggy. Sharkey came up fresh in the sixteenth round and forced the fighting. He landed some heavy blows and the round was considerably in his favor. When the gong sounded he danced to his corner. Sharkey again forced the fighting in the seventeenth round giving Jeff some severe punishment and carrying off the honors of the round. Sharkey was the aggressor in the eighteenth round and forced Jeff against the ropes. It was evident in this round that both men were fighting for reputation and almost life. When the gong sounded they had to be dragged apart.

In the nineteenth round Jeff came in with repeated blows on Sharkey's head and ribs and was evidently wearing him out. Jeff tried to get in a flail blow, but fell wide of his mark and just before the gong sounded Sharkey sent in a hot right header on the big fellow's head.

In the twentieth round Jeff tried to finish matters. The men clinched and Sharkey tries to give Jeff the knee. Sharkey fights like a demon and rushes like a mad bull while Jeff misses many of his marks. Gong sounds and the referee decides Jeffries the winner.

A Clever Trick.

It certainly looks like it, but there is really no trick about it. Anybody can take it who has lame back and weak kidneys, malaria or nervous troubles. We mean he can cure himself right away by taking Electric Bitters. This medicine tones up the whole system, acts as a stimulant to liver and kidneys, is a blood purifier and nerve tonic. It cures constipation, head ache, fainting spells, sleeplessness and melancholy. It is purely vegetable, a mild laxative, and restores the system to its natural vigor. Try Electric Bitters and be convinced that they are a miracle worker. Every bottle guaranteed. Only 50c a bottle at S. J. Hodgkinson's Drug Store.

dated from Baden-Baden. As to the signature, it was impossible to read it.
"I made every attempt, examining it letter by letter, searching among my papers for the name of the person who could have been guilty of this vile scandal. It was absolutely impossible to discover any clew which would put me on the right track. At Baden-Baden I had 300 friends at Baden-Baden. But this unlucky name—still, I must find out what it was. For two days I did nothing but turn it over in my mind, seeking the solution, giving every one whom I met this signature to decipher.
Absolutely useless. Each person gave a different opinion.
"You can imagine into what a fever this had thrown me. At the time I was full of a great many notions. I imagined that to refuse money to a friend was meanness. We are all simpletons when young. But what caused me the greatest annoyance was the thought that perhaps this note was from some one for whom I entertained a real friendship.
"I telegraphed to 10 or 12 intimate friends. None was the author of the note. Then I betook myself to experts in cryptography. One said the name was Casermier—had no doubt of it, it was willing to swear to it. The second said that he challenged any one to read the name otherwise than Sinitais and was willing to swear to that name, and finally a third declared it was not a name at all, but a word. In his opinion
it was 'Civilities.'
"Sinitais and Casermier were alike unknown to me. I turned over the club directories. I again reviewed my book of addresses, name by name. Nothing.
I could discover nothing. I was almost crazy, you may imagine, and I had even lost sight, to some extent, of the original reason for all this trouble, thinking less now of obliging a friend than of discovering this name so carefully concealed.
"On the third day an inspiration came to me, so simple that it had occurred to me only after all the other attempts had failed. I wrote to Baden-Baden for a list of the Frenchmen staying at the hotel of the unfortunate scribbler. I would need only to write to all whom I knew in the place. This calmed me.
And, in truth, I needed it, for I had conceived an inexplicable rage against all this, as if something mysterious and fatal pursued me.
"I retired early on the evening of the third day and soon fell asleep.
"I ought to tell you that I then had—I still have, in fact—the habit of using a night lamp. I cannot bear to feel myself in total darkness for an instant.
"That night—it is truly a singular thing, and I have never been able to think of it without a strange sensation
—that night I was awakened by a sharp cracking sound in the great silence. I have never known what that noise was —doubtless the night lamp going out, for it was perfectly dark. At first a feeling of awful anguish oppressed me, a feeling I always have when in the dark,
and before I had time to fully awaken
I heard—yes, my friend, I actually heard—the effect of nervousness, you say—it matters not—I heard a voice,
which whispered very low, 'Jacques Lermintier.'
"A cold shiver ran through my whole body, though I saw no reason for it. In a second I had risen, lighted a candle
and reread the letter from Baden-Baden.
Why had I not deciphered it before? It was perfectly plain.
"Lermintier was a refined boy, obliging, but a little wild, whom I had loved much when we were young together,
soon lost from sight, then found again
in those momentary encounters where a rapid clasp of the hand and an earnest
'Do you remember?' is all, and then separation, perhaps for years.
"Poor Jacques! That is what we always called him at the school of St.
Cyr.
"He should certainly have had his 1,000 francs.
"I looked at the clock. It was past midnight. Nothing could be done until morning. Immediately I wrote a letter to Baden-Baden, excusing myself, explaining all. I placed the money in it and sealed it. And while I did this I remembered that the whisper which I had heard erewhile was exactly like the voice of Jacques when deeply moved.
"How strange is the work of memory
in our brains, I said to myself, and how was it possible for me to recall at the same time and while yet asleep the name and the voice of 'poor Jacques.'
"Then I went back to bed again, satisfied and calm. I did not dream any more of the whispering voice in the blackness of my silent chamber. No, indeed. I thought no more of it until two days later, when I received a dispatch from Baden-Baden. My registered letter had been remailed to me.
"Poor Jacques! He had killed himself at midnight two days before, at the moment when my sleep was interrupted by a sharp crack—that sharp crack like the report of a pistol.
"Brignac coughed slightly to clear his throat.
"I positively insist that my child shall write a legible hand," he said,
with a sad smile.—From the French

Seth Bryant.

Seth Bryant, who has just died at his home in Ashmont, Mass., at the age of 87 years, was the oldest and best known Democrat in Massachusetts, having been a delegate to all the recent conventions of the party. "He loved," says
the Springfield Republican, "to occupy a front seat on the platform and with his silver ear trumpet turned toward each speaker eagerly absorb the party doctrines upon which he had acted since Jackson's time. During the war he did a large business with the government and first suggested that each manufacturer be compelled to put his name on all shoes sold to the government."—

Abbreviations.

The St. Louis Star is greatly worried because the Boston Globe abbreviates
the word "president." We notice that The Star abbreviates the word "saint" in the name of its own town. Why isn't a saint entitled to as much respect as a president?—Boston Globe.

Hobo is a common word among the Sioux or Dakota Indians. They use the word in referring to young men who have nothing to do. An old chief will correct a son for any such tendencies by saying, "You act like a hobo."

He Couldn't Flow.

A certain incident connected with the great Napoleon while he was in exile
in Elba is commemorated in the island to this hour by an inscription affixed to the wall of a peasant's house.

A man named Giacomini was plowing
when the famous exile came along one day and expressed an interest in his work. Napoleon even took the plow-share out of the man's hand and attempted to guide it himself. But the oxen refused to obey him, overturned
the plow and spoiled the furrow.

The inscription runs thus:
"Napoleon the Great, passing by this place in MDCCCXIV, took in the neighboring field a plowshare from the hands of a peasant and himself tried to plow,
but the oxen, rebellious to those hands
which yet had guided Europe, headlong fled from the furrow."
